The Players

Our story begins with three main players:

- The Victim: A young woman named Evelyn Nesbit Thaw
- The Murderer: Her husband, Harry Thaw
- The Other Man: Stanford White, a famous architect who had an affair with Evelyn

The Setting

Our story takes place in New York City during the Gilded Age, a time of great wealth and inequality. The city was a hotbed of crime, corruption, and vice.

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was a young woman from a poor family. She was beautiful and ambitious, and she dreamed of becoming a star. She met Stanford White, a wealthy and powerful architect, and he promised to help her achieve her dreams.

Evelyn and Stanford began an affair, and they soon became the talk of the town. Evelyn's husband, Harry Thaw, was furious. He was a jealous and possessive man, and he was determined to get revenge on Stanford.

The Murder

On June 25, 1906, Harry Thaw shot and killed Stanford White at the rooftop theatre of Madison Square Garden. The murder shocked the city, and it became a major scandal.

Harry Thaw was arrested and charged with murder. He claimed that he was insane, but a jury found him guilty and sentenced him to death. However, his sentence was later commuted to life in prison.

The Aftermath

Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's life was ruined after the murder. She was publicly humiliated, and her career was destroyed. She eventually married a wealthy man named John Barrymore, but their marriage was unhappy. Evelyn died in 1967 at the age of 67.

Harry Thaw remained in prison until his death in 1947. He was released from prison in 1913, but he was committed to a mental institution shortly thereafter.

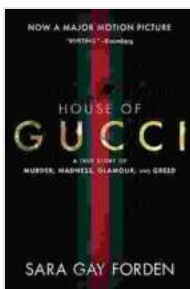

The Legacy

The story of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, Harry Thaw, and Stanford White is a cautionary tale about the dangers of love, lies, and greed. It is a story that has been told and retold for generations, and it continues to fascinate and horrify us today.
